Subject: Request for Removal of Name from Article Due to Inaccurate Information

Dear "Snezana Drinic Mladenovic",

I trust this email finds you well. I am writing to address a matter of utmost importance regarding the article titled " RAPD profiling in detecting genetic variation in Stellaria L. (Caryophyllaceae)," in which I collaborated with several individuals. Unfortunately, it has come to my attention that certain portions of the data presented in the article are inaccurate and fictitious.

In this context, I wish to clarify that my involvement was solely in the discussion section, where I provided comments and notes without any awareness of the existence of inaccurate or fraudulent information. This situation underscores that the misrepresented information has been inserted by some collaborators without my knowledge.

Given that I had no knowledge of any falsification in the data and have diligently ensured the accuracy of the information, I kindly request the removal of my name from the article. This action is crucial not only for safeguarding my credibility but also to prevent any potential repercussions for the university where I am affiliated.

I appreciate your prompt attention to this matter and your understanding of the importance of rectifying this situation promptly. Please let me know if any further documentation or clarification is required from my end.

Thank you for your cooperation.

Sincerely,

Leila Joudi
